For almost 40 years, Patagonia has supported grassroots activists working to find solutions to the environmental crisis. But in this time of unprecedented threats, it’s often hard to know the best way to get involved. That’s why we’re connecting individuals with our grantees, in order to take action on the most pressing issues facing the world today.

Through our membership in 1% for the Planet®, we’ve donated more than $89 million to thousands of grassroots organizations all over the world who are working to create positive change for the planet in their local communities. A diverse and scrappy bunch, these groups protect our land and water, encourage biodiversity and civic engagement, and fight the biggest threat of all—climate change and its ramifications.

Along with grant money, we’ve supported this ever-growing community through the work of employee volunteers, store events, skills training, lobbying and publicity through ads, social media, trade shows and the Patagonia website. And now we’ve developed a new set of modern, scalable tools that connect them with a uniquely valuable asset: our 2.3 million member community.

Through Patagonia Action Works, you can learn about environmental causes, find out about grantee events, sign petitions, donate money and volunteer your time and skills.

We hope with the launch of Patagonia Action Works that meaningful and long-lasting collaborations will emerge, strong, diverse coalitions will be fostered, and the energy that is alive and well in our community will afford our grantees the best tools possible to protect the places and communities we all love and need.

We know community activism works. We hope you too will get involved with Patagonia Action Works.

Our duffels, packs, totes, bags and cubes—in original or lightweight fabric—are durably built and have well thought-out features to protect and organize your gear. Imported.

Patagonia Provisions

The tradition and culture of food have always been important to us at Patagonia. On our many travels, the meals—cedar-planked salmon with First Nations friends in British Columbia, tsampa in yel-har tents in Tibet, asado and chimichurri with Patagonian gauchos—become a vital part of the experience.

What we eat does more than just fill our stomachs and nourish our bodies; good food lifts our spirits and helps us understand the world a little better. So it only makes sense that we’d want to share some of our favorite food with our customers. But that’s just the beginning; we also believe there is great opportunity—and an urgent need—for positive change in the food industry.

With Patagonia Provisions, our goals are the same as with everything we do: We aim to make the best product, cause no unnecessary harm and, perhaps most importantly, inspire solutions to the environmental crisis. —Yvon Chouinard

RECIPE: LAURA SIEVERT’S WILD SALMON DIP

This dip was the winning recipe at Patagonia Provisions’ First Annual Salmon Cook-Off.

Skill level: Easy. Makes about 8 servings.

Ingredients

1 pouch Patagonia Provisions Wild Sockeye Salmon with Lemon Pepper (reserve oil from pouch)

2-3 green onions (including the green) or you can substitute a small sweet onion

Big handful of parsley (we suggest a mix of regular and Italian)

1 package Neufchatel cream cheese, approx. 8 oz

½ lemon, juiced

Dash Worcestershire sauce

Putting It All Together

Place salmon in a small bowl along with half the oil from pouch. Discard remaining oil. Break up fillets into large chunks. Chop onion and parsley somewhat fine.

In a larger bowl, break up cream cheese with a fork. Add half the salmon/oil, dash of Worcestershire sauce, and half of the lemon juice. Mix well, breaking up salmon into shreds. Fold in chopped parsley/onion, remaining lemon juice and remaining salmon, mixing gently to keep larger salmon pieces intact for texture.

Serve with bread or simple crackers.

One of the greatest opportunities we have to lighten the load of Patagonia clothing on the planet is by keeping it in use as long as possible. Our Worn Wear program aims to help people move away from simply being consumers to being owners of things by creating opportunities to repair broken clothing, trade in pieces no longer worn, buy used stuff and recycle anything that’s all worn out.
